Malliouhana resort on Anguilla to reopen Nov. 1

By Gay Nagle Myers

A rendering of the entryway at Malliouhana, an Auberge Resort in Anguilla.

Malliouhana, an Auberge Resort, will reopen on Anguilla on Nov. 1, following a three-year closure and extensive renovations.

Reservations are now being taken, with rates starting at $525 per room, per night, double.

The 44-room resort sits on a 25-acre site, overlooking Meads Bay and Turtle Cove with views of the Caribbean Sea.

The property was purchased in February 2013 by Chicago-based AJ Capital

Partners, which retained Auberge Resorts as management company.

Malliouhana opened in November 1984 as the first five-star resort on the island.

The resort has two beaches and will feature a two-tiered pool area surrounded by private cabanas, the Auberge Spa and an outdoor terrace for al fresco dining.

For details, visit www.malliouhana.aubergeresorts.com.

This article has been updated to reflect that the property is on a 25-acre site, not eight acres as originally stated.
